

hey girls...

we're good for workplaces...

how Encirc partnered with hey girls...

We are working in a male dominated industry and we wanted to normalise the conversation about periods as well as assisting in increasing education on the topic for our male colleagues.

We understand that period poverty impacts our community local to us and therefore we as an organisation wanted to be part of this movement.

You are a fantastic organisation and hold many of our values particularly with regards to sustainability. By using your products, you're helping us reach our sustainability goals.

business to business

period dignity at work

the need...

With Hey Girls free vending machines being in every female or gender neutral toilet this eliminated this issue of not being able to access lockers or money to purchase items in our previous suppliers machines. We also understand that a lot of us get 'caught short' and being able to access the products quickly and easily is a great for our colleagues. We do not know everyone's financial circumstances and wanted to ensure our colleagues are not impacting their health or dignity and ensure they can access while at work.

the impact...

We have received a lot of recognition and thanks on our site for partnering with Hey Girls. It's not only assisted our female colleagues on site but also the wider community via donations.

the products...

We provide Free Vend Units in all female and gender neutral toilets. Also 350 'pads4dads' kits along side a workshop delivered by your team to normalise the conversation about periods with our families.

"we wanted to normalise the conversation about periods and assist in increasing education on the topic for our male colleagues"

about the team...

Cannot thank the team enough for their support and quick response to queries and deliveries. They always keep us up to date and answer any questions I fire over. We love working with you and find the whole experience so easy and have recommended you to another one of our sites where we want to begin introducing Hey Girls there as well!

Want to get the period dignity conversation flowing?
Say hey to the team now:
b2b@heygirls.co.uk

say hey...

