

hey girls...

we're good for workplaces...

how Hydro partnered with hey girls...

As a business we wanted to take the next step in supporting the women within our business by period-proofing our workplaces to ensure that our female colleagues have easy access to free period products like tampons and pads.

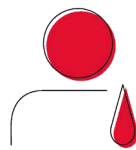

We partnered with Hey Girls because we believe in their approach to improving period equality in a sustainable way.

business to business

period dignity at work

the need...

We were shocked to learn a staggering 86% of women have experienced starting their periods in public without access to period products. We want to bring dignity to our team so they don't have to rush to colleagues for help or even leave work altogether.

the impact...

This solution works towards reducing uncertainty, stigma, and productivity loss. It has empowered our female workforce to focus on their roles without worrying about basic needs.

the products...

Hydro purchased Free Vend dispensers, Mini Nests that were filled with day pads and cardboard applicator tampons.

"we want to support the women within our business by period-proofing our workplaces to ensure that our female colleagues can access to free products" about the team...

The team at Hey Girls were great, such friendly people who were ready to help us and dedicated to make sure everything went through smoothly all the way from the initial enquires to the delivery of products.

Want to get the period dignity conversation flowing?
Say hey to the team now:
b2b@heygirls.co.uk

say hey...

